World Children's Day 2024

As part of the celebrations, the RRS ambassadors took part in a virtual event. They were asked to share one change they would like to make to improve the world. There was a recognition that being a change maker can be overwhelming, so they were asked to share one way they like to have fun. Their next step is to invite a local politician to school so they can explain the rights of the child and why they are so important.
